

Success

Being successful is something almost everyone wants. If you are successful, you get a lot of money, get happy and could even become famous, is what can be heard almost everywhere. However, is this really the meaning of success?

The word success has a different signification for everyone. It can be something big, for example when a person works him- or herself up at the job to get a higher position. That was a huge success for this person. However, success can also be achieved with a tiny little thing such as managing to blink with one eye, after trying for years. Thus, success can be achieved any time in every situation and it doesn't depend whether it's something small or something big. The only thing to do is achieving a goal you set for yourself.

Many people misunderstand the word being successful. Being successful doesn't depend on your job or sports you do. Of course a person like Bill Gates is very successful because of what he did. Though it does not mean that you have to discover or invent something just to become successful. Bill Gates is successful from everyone's point of view, but that's not everything about being successful. You can be successful from your own point of view too and that's the most important thing. It doesn't matter what other people think, if you believe that you're successful due to achieving something you wanted, then you are successful. Therefore being successful is all about one's perspective.

Achieving success can be hard and time-taking. Having too high expectations is one of the most common problems. Hence, it is crucial that a goal is easy enough to achieve because if it's too hard, you can lose your temper and become frustrated. Therefore, patience is needed, otherwise it's harder to achieve success. However, if you set an easy goal, you achieve it faster and get the feeling of success, which makes you want to do more and more. After achieving the first goal, a second one can be set and so on... Success gives you motivation to continue. In the end, after the main goal is achieved, you're successful. Thus, achieving success isn't even that hard, if you don't have too high expectations in the beginning. It is all about you, setting your own goals.

Success is something very important. It helps to stay motivated and gives you a good feeling if you managed to do something. Only if the words "success" and "being successful" are correctly understood, it can make everyone happy. The feeling of success is fundamental in every situation and if it's done correctly everyone can have this feeling.
